

GREAT MILITARY PARADE

NIGHT EDITION

VERDICT OF $400

In Case of Reilly vs. Boston & Maine

The jury in the case of Elizabeth Reilly vs. Boston & Maine which went to the jury Tuesday noon returned a sealed verdict which was opened this morning. The jury awarded the plaintiff $400. John J. O'Connor of Boston appeared for the plaintiff and Trull and Wier for the defendants.

Suit Against Lawrence

The case of Arsene Lauzier vs. Lawrence Manufacturing Company in an action of tort in the sum of $6000, went to trial Tuesday afternoon and the plaintiff occupied the witness stand during the morning session today. The plaintiff claims that on August 13, 1910, while at work on an "elevator" machine in the box shop of the defendant company the machine started up automatically and without warning catching the thumb on his left hand and causing the loss of that member. He claims that the machine was defective and that the company was negligent in regard thereto. Albert S. Howard appeared for the plaintiff and Messrs. Dunbar and Rogers for the defendant company. The case was on trial all day.

Massachusetts Storehouse Accident

The next case in order is that of Percy W. Coffin vs. the Abatash Construction company in an action of tort in the sum of $5000 to recover for injuries received by an elevator accident at the new Massachusetts store house in Bridge street while that building was in process of construction under the defendant company. Messrs. John W. McEvoy and James T. O'Hearn appear for the plaintiff and Messrs. Trull and Wier for the defendant.

LARCENY CHARGED

Frederick A. Evans, a former member of the city government, was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on three counts of larceny as follows: Larceny of $25 from James Donovan in 1908 and larceny of $25 from Richard Taff and $14 from Frank Green in 1909. James Stuart Murphy appeared for the defendant and entered a plea of not guilty for his client. He asked for a continuance intimating that the matter might be settled out of court and the case was continued until tomorrow, the defendant being held under $300 for his appearance at that time.

Evans has been away from Lowell for some time and recently returned to this city. Tuesday, the police were informed that he was in Lowell and his arrest followed.

The alleged larceny from Mr. Donovan had to do with a check which Mr. Evans gave the former. In the count which alleges that he stole $25 from Richard Taff, it is said that Evans negotiated for the purchase of a typewriter from Mr. Taff and after receiving the machine failed to pay the price agreed upon and also neglected to return the machine.

The third count, larceny of $11 from

Frank Green, is in connection with furniture which Mr. Green had purchased from Evans, but when the former tried to get possession of the articles it is said he found that they had been mortgaged.

Hair Pulling Match

Katarzyna Kus was charged with assault and battery on Katarzyna Doboszewska. She entered a plea of not guilty through her counsel, Bennett Silverblatt. Daniel J. Donahue appeared for the government.

According to the testimony offered by the parties interested in the case, the parties interested in the case resided in a house in South street and Monday night the defendant complained of the late hours the complainant was keeping and also to the disturbance that had been going on in her room the night before.

The woman had a few words, then started to call each other names and subsequently the defendant struck the complainant, it is said, and during the struggle which followed the defendant pulled a handful of hair out of the complainant's head.

The court found the defendant guilty and ordered her to pay a fine of $10.

Stole a Keg of Beer

Ernest Michaud, a young man who resides in Cummings' alley, noticed a keg of beer outside of Henry J. Keyes liquor saloon in upper Market street, Tuesday night, and decided that the eight gallons of liquid contained in the barrel would be just the thing to have to celebrate the holiday. Therefore he rolled the keg to his home and was about to sample the goods when the loss was discovered by one of the clerks in the saloon. The police were notified and arrested Michaud. Michaud pleaded guilty and was ordered to pay a fine of $12.

One Drunken Offender

There were but three prisoners in the dock this morning and the only drunken offender was Thomas F. Cummings. He had been on probation, but a few days ago, forgot the good resolutions he had made, and visiting some of his old haunts, met friends and in renewing old acquaintances imbibed rather too freely with the result that he was arrested. He was given a suspended sentence of four months in jail.

CITY HALL NOTES

The contract for fresh beef for the city farm, a six months supply, awarded by the purchasing agent to Armon & Co., was signed by Mayor Meehan today.

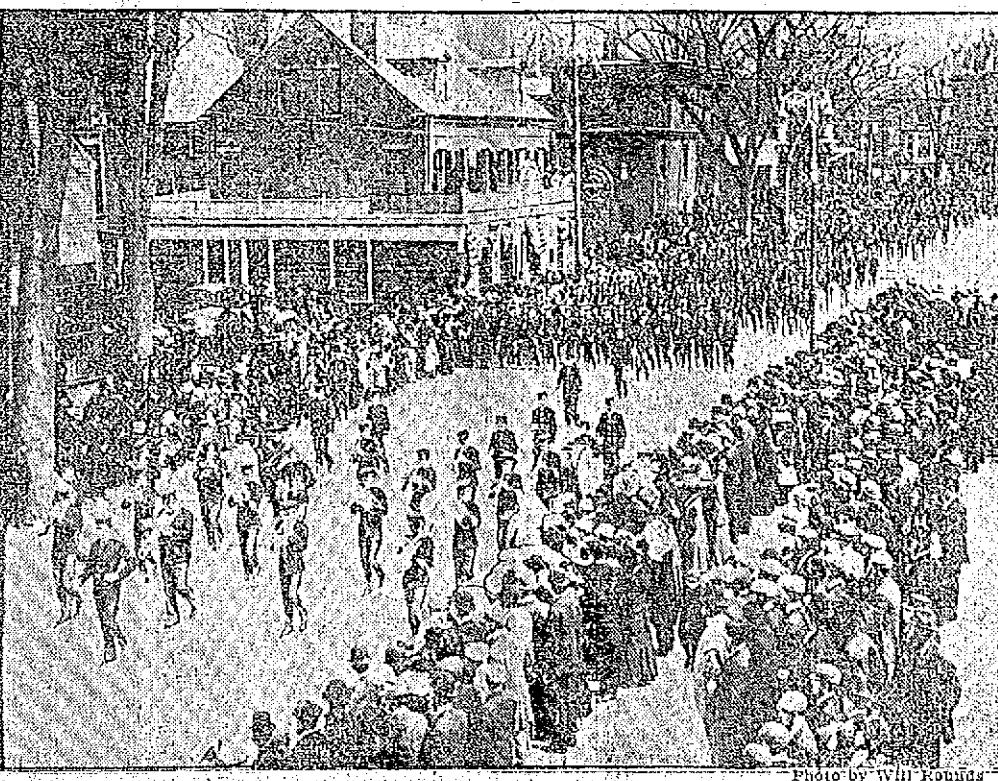

The committee on streets will go a viewing this afternoon and will hold a meeting at 7:30 this evening to consider petitions for streets and street improvements. U. S. COAST ARTILLERY LEADING THE MILITARY DIVISION

50th Anniversary of Old Sixth's March Through Baltimore

By far the most imposing feature of the Nineteenth of April observance was the grand parade which passed through the principal streets of the city yesterday afternoon. It was one of the finest military demonstrations ever witnessed in this city, and cheered upon cheer the air as Brigadier General Edward F. Jones and the survivors of the Old Sixth passed through the streets which were thronged on both sides by thousands of people.

There were fully 6000 men in line, including members of the Old Sixth,

the Sixth regiment of today, military companies from out of town, United States soldiers, semi-military organizations and citizens of Lowell.

Flags and bunting were draped everywhere from the buildings with here and there gold-blazoned emblems. The scene was one of patriotic rejoicing.

More than three-quarters of the population of Lowell, together with thousands of people from out of town, turned out to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the march through Baltimore of the Old Sixth.

The city of Lowell was represented by Mayor John F. Meehan, the state by Governor Foss and Lt. Gov. Frothingham, and the nation and the grand army of the republic by Commander-in-Chief John E. Gilman.

The day was ideal for the parade, the sun playing hide and seek behind the clouds, a mild breeze was blowing and owing to the short route the marchers did not show any fatigue at the conclusion.

One of the most pleasing spectacles of the parade occurred when the head of the line reached the corner of Moody and Aiken street when at the command of Chief Marshal Earl A. Thissell, the marchers took positions on the right of Moody and Merrimack streets, and Governor Foss and staff, Gen. Jones and others occupying carriages were driven by and taken to city hall where the parade was reviewed.

Governor Foss and staff occupied the reviewing stand which was erected on the lawn between City Hall and Memorial building, while Gen. Jones and his two daughters, Mrs. Cora Sheridan and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Anderson, the daughter of the regiment, and Sumner H. Needham, 4th, the grandson of Sumner Needham, who was one of the first four men to fall at Baltimore in 1861, occupied chairs in front of the Merrimack street entrance to city hall.

The demonstration proved to be a trying one on Gen. Jones, for it recalled to him the incidents of half a century ago when he, in the prime of life and gifted with the use of a pair of good eyes, left Lowell for the front and fought valiantly for his country.

For the past twenty years his eyes have been sightless and more than once yesterday he wished that he might have the use of his eyes for a few minutes at least, in order to look upon the remnants of the grand "Old Sixth" which he commanded. While he could not see his old comrades, he was notified when they were passing in review, and standing with uncovered head and eyes dimmed with tears, he waved his hat, heard the cheers of members of his command and later met and shook hands with many of

The Old Sixth

While the 71 survivors of the 700 original members of his command passed and he heard their cheers, he said: "God I've not seen in twenty years and I've never complained, but I'd give my life to see just for a minute now."

It took just 51 minutes for the parade to pass the reviewing stand.

Many of the members of the Old Sixth as well as comrade in the different local posts of the Grand Army of the Republic, yesterday appeared in parade for the last time, for every succeeding year finds the ranks growing thinner, many having been summoned to their eternal home.

There was none of the members of the Old Sixth who did not show the signs of advancing years and the marks of the war.

Sleeves that were empty were either placed in coat pockets or swayed with the breeze, many had to use canes to limp along, here and there a crutch, but those who did not have the use of their lower limbs rode in carriages.

The Formation

The parade formed in the streets about the South common, Chief Marshal Thissell and his staff being stationed at the corner of Highland and Thordike streets. In accordance with orders the participating organizations began to arrive fully half an hour before the starting time of the parade.

Governor Foss and staff occupied the reviewing stand which was erected on the lawn between City Hall and Memorial building, while Gen. Jones and his two daughters, Mrs. Cora Sheridan and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Anderson, the daughter of the regiment, and Sumner H. Needham, 4th, the grandson of Sumner Needham, who was one of the first four men to fall at Baltimore in 1861, occupied chairs in front of the Merrimack street entrance to city hall.

Supt. Redmond Welch and a platoon of police led the line, after which came the Lowell National band and then Chief Marshal Earl A. Thissell and staff. The United States Coast artillery followed the staff officers and made a splendid appearance. They were attired in neat blue uniforms and kept splendid alignment as they marched through the streets.

The Sixth Regiment

After the artillery came the present Sixth regiment preceded by Col. Priest and staff officers mounted.

The companies of the Sixth regiment wore the full dress blue uniform, and every one of the twelve companies participated, with a total of over 700 men in line. For reasons sentimental, the "New Sixth" as a feature of the

A cottage house and barn, belonging to Archie Chouinard, and occupied by a family named Pinkerton, located in Varnum avenue just over the Tyngsboro line and near what is known as "The Pigs," were destroyed by fire about three o'clock this morning. The fire was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp and the flames spread so rapidly that Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton and their four children, in order to save their lives had to rush from the house in night attire. The contents of both buildings were also destroyed.

Neighbors in the vicinity were

alarmed and rushed to the scene with extinguishers, but the flames had made such rapid headway, that the efforts of the volunteer firemen were fruitless and in a short time nothing but a heap of ashes marked the site of the buildings.

It is understood that one of the

Pinkerton children, had been ill and

about three o'clock Mrs. Pinkerton

rose to care for the child. She lighted a lamp and in some manner accidentally dropped it. When the lamp fell to the floor it exploded and the kerosene oil pouring over the floor was soon ignited and in a few seconds the room was ablaze.

Her cries attracted the attention of her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Pinkerton and their children rushed out of the house to that of a neighbor.

The alarm-of-fire was soon spread

and within a few minutes a number of neighbors were on the scene and

later on residents within a mile were

on hand, but the only things they had

to battle with the flames were hand

extinguishers and the streams of chemical

had no effect on the buildings

which were adrift from the ground to the roof.

Several Fires Yesterday

The firemen responded to several

alarms for fires yesterday, but in no

case was the fire of a serious nature.

At 10:53 o'clock yesterday morning

a portion of the department was called

to a fire in a house in Chelmsford

street, belonging to the Frank C. Be arrell estate. The fire started in a bed sponge in a sitting room, the lounge

being destroyed, but the only other

damage was the charring of the walls

and the door near where the lounge

was located.

At 10:45 a telephone alarm was sent

for fire on the banks of the Merrimack river near the corner of Stackpole and Alder streets. Some person had started a fire in the grass and the flames scorched a portion of the fence

before they were extinguished.

THE OLD SIXTHSurviving Members of Regiment
Held Important Session

The surviving members of the Old meeting yesterday forenoon, the main feature of which was the election of officers for the ensuing term.

The reunion was held at Memorial hall and was attended by about 125 members.

Capt. J. H. Jones of Portsmouth, N. H., president of the association, tapped to order at 11 o'clock with E. F. Spofford as secretary. Gen. Edward F. Jones of Binghamton, N. Y., was present and occupied a seat of honor at the president's right. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary as well as several communications from members of the organization who expressed their sorrow at not being able to be present.

Then the members proceeded to the choice of the nominating committee whose duty it was to make a choice of officers for the ensuing term, with the following results: Comrade Dickerman of Co. A; Capt. Cady Philbrick of Company C; Comrade Charles L. Taylor of Company D; Comrade George A. Reade of Company E; Comrade Amos Jones of Company F; Comrade G. C. Durrell of Company G; Comrade James Edward Hill of Company H; and Comrade Maurice Neill of Company I.

On motion of one of the members from the floor, the name of Gen. Edward F. Jones was placed in nomination as the president for the coming year and it was favored unanimously, but after the vote was announced Gen. Jones declined to accept, stating that it was some 25 years ago that he made a motion that no member should serve more than one term in this particular office unless it was found absolutely necessary.

The committee then adjourned and on its return announced the following selection of officers for the coming year:

President, Charles H. Frye of Company K; first vice president, J. Stewart Brown of Company G; second vice president, Victor G. Gingras of Company I; secretary and treasurer, Edward F. Spofford. These names were placed before the body and voted on unanimously. The same auditing committee will serve for the next term.

The secretary read communications from Benjamin Warren of St. George, Comrade Richard of Washington, Comrade Warren L. Braddock of Topeka, Me., Henry Meade of Valley City, North Dakota; Joseph F. Ridder of Johnson City, Tenn., William H. Hobbs of Worcester, and N. J. Newton.

Adjournment was taken before 12 o'clock so that the visiting veterans and their friends might partake of the dinner which was served in the upper hall and prepare for the parade.

Among those present was Joseph F.

Safford of Company I, who recently returned from Burma, India.

PLEASANT TIME
ENJOYED BY THE FRENCH

Following the cards a delightful musical program was rendered by the following: Evariste Rousseau, violin; Frank Lagasse, piano and Napoléon Cloutier, cornet, all three of Lawrence; rendered several pretty selections, and Mr. Rousseau also sang some songs. Miss Steverine Savard played a piano solo, and Frank Leconte, Albert Rouche and George St. George, gave a song and dance with Mr. Paquette at the piano.

Rev. Fr. Lanothe, O. M. L. chaplain of the order of the French American Foresters made remarks as did J. P. Montonyi and Arthur Lavoie, the latter deputy of the court.

The committee in charge was composed of the following young women:

Miss Ida Porte, president; Miss Anna Blais, secretary; Miss Donaldine Rivet, treasurer; Misses Marie Louise Lehouf, Marie Louise Jutten, Bertha Lehouf, Marie Cognac, Emma and Anna Landry, Florence Hebert, Bertha and Minnie Leblanc, Alice Maillois, Mrs. N. THE BANQUET

The Closing Feature of the Day's Exercises

The banquet, the last grand feature of the big observance, was held in the drill hall of the High school annex. The great shed, with its iron girders and rough walls, was clothed in decorations that made it almost beautiful. Flags and bunting were revealed in various forms and the decorations were nothing—if not artistic. Old Glory embraced the iron girders and streamers floated from sides and ceiling. Portraits of the two Lowell governors, Butler and Greenhage, lighted by clusters of incandescent lights, were hung behind the speaker's table, and the scene, as a whole, was a very pretty and a very inspiring one.

The attendance numbered about 700, men and women. The survivors of the Old Sixth were the guests of the occasion. During the dinner a musical program was given by the band of the North Chelmsford Training school and the music was all that could be desired. The gathering was a most unusual one and the beauty of the scene was enhanced by the brilliant uniforms of the governor's staff and other militia officers.

Gen. E. F. Jones

On account of his infirmities, Gen. E. F. Jones was obliged to leave before the speaking began and, in order to give him an opportunity to sound a few notes of appreciation and satisfaction, a brief intermission was taken while the dinner was still in progress.

The voice of the old soldier did not carry a great distance, and his sightless eyes could not take in the unusual surroundings, but behind the weak voice and sightless eyes there was a heating heart that had lost none of the energy of '61, and although the voice was weak the sentiments of the heart found expression there and the face of the old soldier, though darkened by the eyes that see no more, was brightened, and made joyous by the feelings of the heart.

In referring to the action of the Massachusetts legislators on the question of a statue to Gen. Butler, the old man of war pulled himself together and in almost tragic tones declared that long, after these legislators have been forgotten, General Butler's fame as a general will live.

He said it was a disgrace to the state of Massachusetts to have refused to erect a statue to Gen. Butler. "To Gen. Butler," he said, "in no small degree is due the prosperity of the state and nation. He did some things with which not everybody could agree, but that long, after these legislators have been forgotten, General Butler's fame as a general will live."

Also another piece of land with the buildings thereon situate easterly of the side of the Road at land now or formerly of one Sweeney, thereon running northeasterly along said Sweeney land (100) one hundred feet to a boundary; thence south (111-30-100) one hundred and eleven and 30/100 feet to a boundary; thence northeasterly for one hundred and 75/100 feet to land of one Sweeney ($175-100) one hundred feet to the point of beginning. The said premises being the same to my wife conveyed by deed of Elizabeth Maguire, record in the office of recorder of deeds, Book 339, Page 403. My title to said premises coming to me by operation of the law—as the husband of the late Mary Farrel, late of Dracut—administration of whose estate has been duly probated at Middlesex County Probate Court. QUICKLY CLEARS THE COMPLEXION

Mrs. Mae Martyn has been addressing large audiences everywhere with her lecture on "Beauty and How to Achieve It," says the San Francisco Call. She said today: "With complexion as in dress, simplicity accomplishes most. So many women mistake in thinking high-priced powders and cosmetics best because of their cost.

"Of all skin beautifiers none compares with common spermaceti. It makes an ideal, inexpensive face lotion and used daily for a time makes a rough, raw, lifeless or plump complexion clear and smooth.

"To make the lotion, get all any drug store four ounces of spermaceti and dissolve it in a half-pint hot water, adding two teaspoonsfuls of glycerine. When applied it does not rub off or show like powder and is wonderful for oily, shiny, rough skins. It leaves the skin clear, smooth and velvety."

brothers aimed their bullets at each other and sons and fathers fought to the death. And yet such things are being done today; and there is probably no day in any year where somewhere on the earth, armed men do not face each other in battle form.

The strongest forces of our times, however, are acting to oppose warfare. There's the growing spirit of humanity and brotherhood, the intelligent understanding of ourselves and others; the instant spread of news to all quarters of the world, by which great pressure can be brought to bear to solve the difficulty without recourse to arms. But most of all, there is the growing sense of world-wide unity through trade and travel. The people of Europe are now our friends and customers.

"So, while we still remember, and give full homage to our friends and brothers who laid down their lives upon the battlefields, let us remember that we too can give our lives not in battle—but in life-long efforts in the cause of peace."

Mayor John F. Meehan

In responding to the toast, "The City of Lowell," Mayor Meehan said, in part:

"The privilege given me as mayor to participate in these exercises and respond for the city is one which I shall always remember with particular pride and gratification."

"But I do not for a minute entertain the thought that the appearance of any civil official is needed to honor the men of the Old Sixth. I am here rather to bear testimony to the honor which the Old Sixth has done Lowell.

"It is in that spirit I rise tonight, seeking in what way the city can make more secure the fame of those who 50 years ago put us under a great and honorable debt of gratitude upon the streets of Baltimore.

"It is a stupendous, historical event which we are celebrating. Like the first stand of the embattled farmers of the revolution it is one which grows larger with the flight of years. The mutual significance and importance of it all becomes more clearly apparent as

LOST DOUBLE-HEADERAlbany and Utica Won From the Home Team*Duval's Wildness Responsible for Morning Defeat—Home Team Made Strong Finish in Second Game—All the Recruits Were Tried Out

Lowell lost two games at Spalding park yesterday, but that fact should not preclude the fans against the home team which looks good even if it did go down twice yesterday. The first game was lost through Duval's wildness, it being his first game, while the second game would have been an overtime affair had Cooney touched all the bases when running ahead of Flaherty's three-bagger.

Morning Game
Albany was the attraction at the morning game and the fans were surprised to see Mike O'Toole, formerly of Brockton, Lynn, and Haverhill, and the old guard of the New England league in an Albany uniform. "How do you like Albany?" asked a fan. "Never was there in my life as yet," responded Mike, who joined the team on the road. Big Bill Duval opened up for Lowell, and it was his first at fence. He was released without fine after the second inning, but was warned not to let it happen again. Bill was wild, not only at putting men over but at throwing to first, sending the ball to the fence in the third and letting in two runs on top of three previously made. Blowers succeeded him but didn't offer much encouragement. Then a young fellow named Hadley went in. Hadley had the goods, but was put in too late. Hartley of the visitors touched Duval for a homer over the left field fence, and the visitors in the sixth made their last run on a pretty squeeze play. The score:

A great many people expect that the committee appointed to devise some method of preventing drownings in the local canals will accomplish something. The committee should at least get definite information on what the law requires in the line of protection along the banks of canals running through a city. If the Locks and Canals company would fence the canals properly there would then be little ground for complaint.

President Mellon's speech before the Boston Chamber of Commerce recently has set the Boston reformers a-thinking. Mayor Fitzgerald approves Mr. Mellon's suggestions and will study port and dock matters abroad. He admits that a great engineer is required to supervise the work. The problem demands prompt action so that there will not be much time to investigate if it be met in a proper manner.

ABOLISH THE LEAVE TO PRINT PRIVILEGE

It is proposed to abolish the "leave to print" privilege that has been so much abused in congress. By this is meant that an undelivered speech shall be printed in the Congressional Record as part of the proceedings. This privilege has been grossly abused in the past when members smuggled into the Record the most outrageous attacks upon individuals or interests against whom or which they had a personal grievance. Congress is not safe in permitting this leave to print privilege to be abused as it has been in the past. In many of the cases in which this privilege is asked, the men who ask the privilege are afraid to deliver the address in the open as it is a plagiatic makeshift that they know would be torn to shreds in discussion if delivered in the open. The dignity of congress and the rights of the members will best be maintained by abolishing completely this leave to print privilege.

CRIMINAL LIABILITY IN NEW YORK FIRE

The coroner's jury that investigated the New York holocaust has reported holding Isaac Harris and Max Blanck, proprietors of the Triangle shirtwaist factory, criminally responsible for the death of Mary Harmon whose death the jury elected to investigate. The body of this girl was found close to a door leading from the building and supposed to be one of the exits, but which during the time of the conflagration was securely locked. The jury is to be congratulated on its finding. Any other finding would have been criminal and farcical.

It is to be hoped these men will be punished for the crime of closing the exits which the law required to be kept open and thereby causing the loss of numerous lives. The jury in addition made some very valuable recommendations that would effect a radical change in the fire conditions in New York city. These comprise improvements in the construction of buildings, in the supervision by building inspectors and general precautions against fire, including the following:

That a compulsory fire drill shall be established where large numbers of employees are assembled.

That all factory buildings shall be inspected at least once in six months.

That automatic sprinklers shall be installed.

That all factory stairways shall be hereafter extended to the roof.

That rules shall be posted in large factories telling what to do in case of fire.

That an axe shall be placed at all doors of manufacturing places.

Let us hope that the finding and recommendations of this jury will result in the indictment of the two men held criminally liable and in the adoption of greater protection against fire for those who work in factories, especially the skyscrapers that recent events have proved to be so dangerous in case of fire in the upper stories.

THE CELEBRATION FULLY JUSTIFIED

Governor Foss in his veto of an appropriation to help the celebration held here yesterday, took the stand that the march through Baltimore was not a proper thing to celebrate. That may be a plausible ground for the governor of the state to take, but if President Lincoln were alive we surmise that he would not offer any objection to the celebration for the reason that he felt that it was this hurried transit to Washington, including the fight in the streets of Baltimore, that saved the capital from falling into the hands of the rebels. It is all very well to show due respect for the feelings of the south, but as often as this anniversary comes around the city of Lowell, whose sons were the first to fall, may be excused if she recalls the now important historic fact and adds one more tribute to the memory of the martyrs.

Christianity has made martyrdom sublime and sorrow triumphant. There have been millions of martyrs for the cause of Christ and next to the cause of religion, the grandest, noblest cause for which a man can die is his country's freedom and independence. It was to preserve our freedom and to emancipate the slaves that Ladd, Whitney and Taylor fell, and we need not feel the slightest delicacy in celebrating their memory with public parades and patriotic exercises whenever the anniversary of their fall recurs. Will it offend the south, will it hurt the feelings of the present residents of Baltimore? We think not, and if it does offend them to honor the memory of the men who were first to give their lives in the cause of union, then let them be offended.

In the light of recent events, we believe the people of Baltimore are not so sensitive on such matters. We believe that if they were closer to Lowell they would join us in the celebration in honor of the men who fell on that memorable day.

Shall we refrain from honoring the name of Lincoln lest the South should take offense? No, nor should we hesitate to honor in the highest degree the individual soldiers who first or last gave up their lives in order that the Union might be preserved and our freedom safeguarded for ages to come. We insist, therefore, that the celebration held here yesterday in honor of the Old Sixth and the men who fell at Baltimore is fully justified by the cause in which they died and which was eventually fully vindicated and sustained.

HER EYES

Those eyes of blue I'll ne'er forget, they thrill my soul with rapture yet. No greater pleasure man could know than to look in their depths, and I thought. Their owner now is far away. Well I recall those eyes of grey, so deep, so limpid, clear and bright, so full of fascinating light. They had me with their beauty. Their soft, shy glances meeting mine with looks of love how they would shine. Those hazel eyes! I see them now, expressive, sweet, low, girlish brow, suggesting dreams of full of love. They filled my soul with pure delight. Those flashing eyes, as black as night. Those eyes! They set me in a whirl. She is for me the only girl!

A torn jacket is soon mended; but hard words bruise the heart of a child.—Longfellow.

Speak not harshly—much of sin dwelleth every human heart within; In its closely-covered cells. Many a wayward passion dwells. By the many hours indespent. By the gifts to error lent. By the wrong thou dost not shun. By the good thou has not done—With a lenient spirit scan. The weakness of thy brother man. Speak not harshly—much of care Every human heart must bear; Enough of shadows sadly play Around the very sunniest way—Enough of sorrows darkly lie. Veiled within the merriest eye. By the childhood's gushing tears—By the grief of after years—By the anguish thou dost know—Add not to another's woe!

A MYSTERY SOLVED

For years medical men have been seeking a cure for eczema, the most common and most stubborn of skin diseases. Some said it was a blood disease; some said it was the result of indigestion. It remained for one studios chemist to settle beyond any question that eczema in most forms is a skin disease and related to no way to a disordered condition of the blood. This same chemist experimented with many antiseptics, healing and soothering agents, but it was not until he formed the compound Cadum that he at last realized he had given to the world something that would bring relief or cure to hundreds of sufferers. Cadum ranks today with the greatest discoveries of the medical world. Its action is so positive that the healing of eczema is stopped at once. People who have itched and scratched for years find sleep and rest soon after Cadum is applied. Cadum is sold by all druggists at 10c and 25c a box. It is for eczema in all its forms, also for pimpls, blisters, itch, tetters, scaly skin, eruptions, chafing, scabs, scurvy, sores, scabs, itching piles.

THE OPERA HOUSE

It is seldom that a play has enjoyed a New York engagement of over six months and a successful road tour given its first local presentation at popular prices, but such is the case with the play being presented by the Thompson-Flynn stock company at the Opera House this week. The play is "The Battle," written by Cleveland Moffit and presented by Wilton Lackaye, under the management of Leibler & Co. "The Battle" is a drama dealing with modern business methods and has for its central figure, John J. Haggerton, the richest man in the world. The play is one of human interest and strong dramatic scenes and situations and as played by this clever company is given an excellent presentation and one that calls forth enthusiastic praise, five and six curtain calls being the rule at each performance yesterday. "The Battle" will be the bill for the entire week except Friday.—Adv.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD

Though it has been off the boards for a quarter of a century, "The Old Homestead," which comes to the Opera House, Friday night still has power to interest and charm an audience, despite its age.

It is a simple thing, this comedy of country life, very different from the highly spiced dramatic entertainments of the present day, and its humor is very unsophisticated. It is this very simplicity, however, which spells success in this instance. There are few plays, if any, which can go on year after year for a quarter of a century, playing to crowded houses. "The Old Homestead" is one of these.—Adv.

HATHAWAY THEATRE

Standing room was at a premium at both performances of "When We Were Twenty-One" at the Hathaway theatre yesterday and the indications are that there will be few seats left at the closing performances of this popular drama in which Donald Meek in the character of "The Imp" makes a tremendous hit.

Next week will be laugh week at the Hathaway, when the Donald Meek stock company with Seyer DeSey will present Louis Mann's greatest of laugh-provoking comedies, "All On Account of Eliza," in which Donald Meek will appear in the principal role, that of a crusty old German, a part created by Mr. Mann himself for himself and in which he made a tremendous hit all over the country. This play will give Mr. Meek another fine opportunity to demonstrate his great versatility and he has already made a success of the part at the Castle Square theatre. Seats for next week are on sale.—Adv.

MADAME SHERRY

KELLY ARRESTED

He is Charged With Causing the Death of Jeremiah Mahoney

BOSTON, April 20.—Jeremiah Mahoney, aged 45, of 21 Joseph street, Somerville, was instantly killed at 5.15 yesterday morning on C street, South Boston, resulting from a blow on the back of the head.

Ex-Councilman Coleman Kelly of 82 West 8th street, South Boston, was arrested within an hour afterward by Patrolmen De Yonne and Hill and Reserve Officer Stephen Murphy of division 6 on charge of causing Mahoney's death by throwing a brick at him.

It struck the mark and Mahoney fell to the ground dead, without uttering a sound, says Manning.

Patrick Coyne and another man were with Kelly at the time and one of them, according to Daniel Manning's story, struck at him until he saw Mahoney fall. The second assailant cried, "He's killed him!" and then ran away, Manning says. Kelly also took to his heels and was soon out of sight, according to Manning.

James A. Roche, a guest at the wedding reception, who departed about the same time that Manning and Mahoney left, says he was just behind the party when the assault occurred. He declares Kelly, Coyne and the third man had disappeared. Roche saw blood on Mahoney's face and then ran to the parochial residence of the church of the Holy Rosary and summoned a priest. But the man was dead.

Manning was the first to notify the police of the trouble. Lieut. Sanford sent out men to arrest Kelly. Patrolmen De Yonne and Hill and Officer Murphy, went to the home of Kelly. One of Kelly's brothers told the officers that Coleman was not in and refused admittance. The officers broke down the door and they found Coleman in his room partially dressed. He made no resistance.

At the station, Kelly was overcome when informed that Mahoney was dead. All Kelly would say, then, was that he had done it in self-defense and was very sorry Mahoney was dead.

Mahoney's body was taken to the City hospital morgue at the request of the medical examiner.

With Kelly, at the time of the assault, was Patrick Coyne, and he, with Daniel Manning and Jacob Frank, are said to have been witnesses of the affair.

Patrick Manning and Miss Sarah Coughlin, both of South Boston, were married Tuesday evening and shortly afterward festivities began at the home of the bridegroom, 93 C street. More than 100 relatives and friends of the couple were present to congratulate them.

It is said that shortly after midnight Edward Barry, a friend of Manning, who was on his way to the reception, having received an invitation, met Kelly and invited him to accompany them.

Witnesses among the wedding guests says Barry and Kelly were ejected from the house, Barry without his hat and coat.

While they stood on the sidewalk Mahoney came along and, it is said, urged Kelly to take his friend Barry and get along out of the way.

Kelly said that he would not go until his friend Barry got his hat and coat.

By some of the guests it is said that Kelly and Barry returned to the house and got the latter's clothes and then hurried out.

According to the story of Daniel Manning, a brother-in-law of Mahoney, he and Mahoney were walking along C street toward Broadway about 5.15 and were intending to get a car for their home in Somerville. Manning says Kelly overtook the men and, muttering something to Mahoney, stepped in the gutter, picked up a brick or part of one and threw it at Mahoney's head.

TWO TRAGEDIES

Walden Man Fired at Wife and Then Committed Suicide

Man Was Shot While Clipping Limbs From a Tree—James Kenny Charged With Assault With a Dangerous Weapon

MALDEN, April 20.—As a result of two entirely unconnected shooting affairs in this city yesterday, Zarachis T. Tallon, aged 51, of 51 Salem street, is a suicide, after twice wounding his wife; James A. McDonald of 5 Greenwood court, has a serious wound in the left knee and James Kenny of 1 Greenwood court, a neighbor, is locked up on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Tallon shot himself in the head shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after attempting to kill his wife and stepdaughter, Miss Edna Desmond, aged 20, who resided with him. The shot that he fired into his head lodged in his brain and killed him almost instantly.

No reason can be given by Mrs. Tallon for the act. She stated that the shooting came without any warning whatever. Tallon fired two shots at his wife, one entering her left side and passing out through her back, barely under the skin. The second bullet pierced her right hand.

Miss Desmond interfered and the would-be murderer chased her from the house, firing two shots at her as she ran along Salem street. Neither bullet took effect and Tallon returned to the house, apparently with the intention of finishing his wife.

He entered by a side door and his wife fled by a back stairway into the yard. Not finding his wife in the room, he placed the revolver back of his ear and shot himself dead.

Shooting Result of Feud
Trouble over a cherry tree in the yard of James Kenny, at 1 Greenwood court, branches of which reach over into the McDonald yard, at 5 Greenwood court, resulted last evening in the second tragedy of the day. McDonald, receiving a bullet when he attempted to clip the branches overhanging his premises.

The shooting, it is charged, is the outcome of a feud that has centered about the cherry tree for two years. McDonald was struck in the knee by the bullet and fell.

After supper last evening McDonald went into his own yard and began clipping some of the branches of the cherry tree that spread from the neighboring lot. He had been engaged in the task only a short time when Kenny appeared in the adjoining yard and ordered him to stop.

McDonald paid no attention to the order.

One of our readers describes a recent experience in a Greenfield Drug Store that is interesting in that it shows the extraordinary popularity of one of the new tonics. The lady, on asking for a bottle of Toffeeine, was surprised to have the clerk immediately pull out a drawer and hand her a parcel all wrapped up and tied. "What's this?" she inquired. "It's a bottle of Toffeeine," the clerk answered. "We have so many calls for Toffeeine that we wrap them up ahead so as to have them all ready."

Toffeeine, which is so extensively used both as an external and internal remedy, is sold, some think, all around the country, as well as for healing cuts, burns, bruises, sores, etc. It was first introduced in New England over twenty years ago. Since then it has made its way into numberless homes as an almost indispensable thing to have in the house all the time.

tree, and discharged it at McDonald. The bullet struck McDonald in the left knee, causing a painful wound. With a cry of pain he fell to the ground. The commotion and the shooting attracted his son, Edward McDonald, who hurried to his father's assistance and helped him into the house.

Later in the evening the police arrested Kenny on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

A LIVELY BLAZE

In a House in Moody Street

An alarm from box 162 shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a lively blaze in a lodging house at 493 Moody street, conducted by John Rooney. The fire had its inception in a sleeping room on the second floor and had been smoldering for several hours before it was discovered.

One of the occupants of the house detected a strong odor of smoke made an investigation and locating the fire pulled an alarm. When the door was broken open the interior of the room was like a roaring furnace, but the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they communicated to other parts of the house.

The interior of the room, and its contents were destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known.

parade was also conspicuous. Possessing the name of the regiment which marched through Baltimore, and including in its membership a company composed of colored men, the organization was next to the "Old Sixth" and other veterans of the Civil war, the most prominent in the line.

The High School battalion followed closely after the sixth and made a good impression.

At the head of the veterans was Marshal William L. Dickey, and just behind his staff, in a carriage, were Gov. Foss, Adjutant General Pearson, Mayor McLean and Assistant Adjutant General Pearson.

Then came the carriage occupied by the hero of the day, General Edward F. Jones, who commanded the Old Sixth in its march through Baltimore. With Gen. Jones were his two daughters, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Anderson and Mrs. Cora Sheridan, and Charles H. Richardson, a member of the Old Sixth.

The different posts followed, including 185, 42, 120, of Lowell, Needham post of Lawrence, and others. Post Needham was named after one of the four men who gave up their lives in the march through Baltimore. Incidentally it may be stated that Sumner H. Needham, the fourth, a great grandson of the man of that name who was killed at Baltimore, was in the parade, and later shook hands with General Jones and Governor Foss.

The First Trinitarian cadets, wearing blue and white uniforms, attracted attention, and were cheered repeatedly. The Boy Scouts, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow commanding, proved a novel and an attractive feature.

With Capt. McNulty at their head, and the Meagher guards acting as escort, the Spanish War veterans marched in large numbers and with the precision of men who have had experience in matters military. They wore blue uniforms that were in splendid harmony with those of the other and older veterans. Many cities and towns were represented in the lineup.

Peter A. Mackenzie was marshal of the fourth division and behind him marched the bagpipers with their usual music and a bass drummer who manipulated his two sticks in a manner which could not fail to attract attention. He juggled the sticks in every which way and despite his maneuvers managed to keep time and dispense music in keeping with the bagpipers. Then came the Scottish clans with their native attire followed by the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias.

The local divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Divisions 1, 2, 8, 11 and 28, turned out in large numbers and were headed by Marshal Michael McMullen. First came the Lowell Cadet band followed by the Wolfe Tone Guards and Company E, Irish Volunteers, acting as escort for the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Every local division was well represented, including Divisions 1, 2, 8, 11 and 28, and the men wore suits of black with green sashes, and military caps.

The French division, Henry Achin, marshal, was one of the most elaborate in the parade, comprising hundreds of fine looking men wearing uniforms with blue as the central color. They were decidedly military in their appearance, and their precise steps and splendid alignment excited enthusiastic recognition along the line of march.

The Greek and Polish societies made up the seventh division. The marchers were attired in gay uniforms with elaborate trappings and were accompanied by their bands. The Greek military society, attired in khaki uniforms, turned out in large numbers and presented a very neat appearance.

The pageant feature included floats depicting war figures, including two nurses, Clara Barton and Dr. Laura Hughes, and President Lincoln.

The roster of the parade was as follows:

Eighth—Senator Joseph H. Hubbard, Representative Killpatrick, Selectman Tuttle of Acton and Mayors

of Art and artistic ever seen in this city.

The roping and wiring off of the streets kept the streets along the route of parade free of people other than those who were marching.

The committee in charge of the observance established itself in the reception room at city hall at ten o'clock in the morning where Mayor John F. McLean and a large corps of aids, members of the committee, made their headquarters.

All trains bearing organizations which were to appear in the parade were met at the depot by representatives of the general committee.

Governor Foss and his staff came over the road to Lowell in automobiles, after seeing the start of the military hike in front of the state house. They made their headquarters at the Yorick club.

The regulars, a detachment from the United States coast artillery from the forts in Boston harbor, came early in the morning. The enlisted men were installed at Hamilton hall while the officers were taken to city hall and later entertained at the Yorick club.

Post 12, G. A. R., of Wakefield, the Old Sixth association, and Posts 67, 68 and 146 were entertained by Post 12 in Memorial hall. Posts 39, 40 and 34 were cared for by Post 120 and Post 158 entertained Posts 4, 75, 194 and 195.

The Sons of Veterans and women's auxiliary organizations entertained many of the visiting organizations.

The Boston & Northern Street Railway company used almost every available car on the local division to provide rapid transit for the thousands of people.

People who were of the opinion that the parade would not start for half an hour after the appointed time were disappointed and a number missed it.

Almost every available window in the business buildings in Merrimack and Central streets was thronged with people.

Hundreds of the visitors were entertained at the homes of their friends in this city and many remained over night in Lowell.

The members of the rising generation risked life and limb in order to secure a place of vantage to view the parade. The roofs of the Pastime and Star theatres opposite city hall were black with boys and young men who armed with large sticks made plenty of noise as the parades passed.

Many of the marchers carried beautiful bouquets which had been presented them by friends.

The manner in which the various details of the parade were carried out to the letter reflects much credit on Chief Marshal Thissell and his aids.

One of the members of the Protective company was stationed at the entrance to Central street to keep the street clear of vehicles in order that the automobile might be able to break through the crowd in case an alarm of fire was sounded. Fortunately no alarm was pulled in while the parade was passing.

One of the features of the parade was the fact that there was plenty of good music.

Alvin Joy was the impersonator of President Lincoln on the boat entered by the O. U. A. M.

The colored company of the Sixth regiment was loudly cheered all along the route of parade.

Mr. Dunn, the man after whom the town of Dunstable is named and familiarly known as "Dunn of Dunstable," mounted on his famous fawn colored stallion, "Patrick Sarsfield," had "Happy Days" Casey laid away.

During a stop in Merrimack street near St. Anne's church the Lowell Military band struck up some patriotic airs and the veterans of the post behind them sang the songs to the band accompaniment to the great satisfaction of the big crowd present, which applauded lustily.

There was certainly some class to the Greeks and the Poles in the parade. They turned out in numbers and in neat uniforms, while their marching was fine.

Marshal Dennis Murphy carried a huge bouquet presented him by the Jolly Campers.

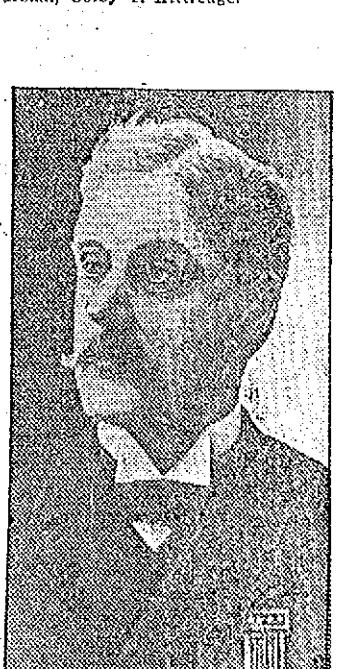

One man who, if he cared to, might

SPANISH WAR VETS

56 Camps Were Represented at the Annual Convention

Albert L. Potter Was Chosen Dept. Commander — Governor Foss and Lieutenant Governor Frothingham Addressed the Delegates

About 700 members of the Spanish War Veterans association attended the annual convention of the organization which opened in the armory hall in this city Tuesday evening. Delegates from 55 camps of the state were present, and while in this city were the guests of Gen. Adelbert Ames camp. Major W. R. Scott Hale, of the department of California, was the representative of the commander-in-chief of the veterans, who was forced to be absent on account of illness in the family. The convention was formally opened by the department commander, Commander Henry J. McCannon, after the bugler had played "To the Colors," followed by the prayer recited by Rev. William Dusseault. Major Hale presented the wishes of success and prosperity from the commander, and Edw. H. Gilson, past department commander of Massachusetts, presented to Comrade Hale a jewel or medal which had been voted to him at the national convention held in Denver a year ago. Following this Lawrence Cummings as a citizen of Lowell in the absence of Mayor Meehan, delivered a greeting to the visiting veterans and delegates from the different camps. Considerable routine business was transacted and in the course of the meeting, Adj. Gen. Gardner W. Pearson made his appearance in the hall, which was the signal for long and continued applause.

The following were nominated as delegates to the national convention:

Edward J. Glines, General William Stopford, F. T. Clough, Comrades

Downey, Mansell, J. R. Roland, Camp

Adams.

The nominations for officers were made in most cases with elaborate speeches introducing the candidates,

for department commander, Albert L.

Potter; junior vice department commander, J. J. Pendoley, Neil McDonald, and Frederick C. Foye; department

inspector, Matthew J. Clark, Thaddeus

Gordon.

Adjournment was taken at 11:50 after the assembly had been addressed briefly by Adj. Gen. Pearson.

At 9:30 a. m. yesterday the convention reopened for the purpose of electing the officers and delegates from among the nominees who were chosen Tuesday night. Comrade E. J. Gilson moves that no resolutions be taken after 10:30 and that all nominees for delegates at large and alternates signify their intention of attending the national convention at Oklahoma City. In this manner, three of the delegates were dropped from the list and Comrades Arthur S. Blair, Arthur N. Newhall and Col. P. F. Packard were nominated.

At this time Lieut.-Gov. Louis A. Frothingham entered the hall and was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. The visitor in a brief address extended his congratulations and best wishes to the members of the U. S. V. V. A. On his exit he was cheered to the echo as "Our next governor."

A motion was made and passed that a collection be made among the members of the convention for the inmates of the Soldiers' home at Chelsea. The collection netted exactly $40.50.

A delegation from the Ladies auxiliary was ushered into the hall and greeted by Dept. Commander McCannon. Mrs. McNamara, a past commander in the auxiliary, was presented and extended the greetings of the L. A., assuring them of their loyalty and concluded by presenting Dept. Commander McCannon a huge bouquet of flowers. Dr. Laura A. C. Hughes and other ladies of the delegations were each presented and gave their respective greetings in eloquent terms. The committee on resolutions then presented its report and Past Commander-in-Chief Stover presented P. C. Gilson, a jewel of his order which had been voted to him at the National encampment held at Denver a year ago. Adjournment was taken at 12:45 in order to be ready for the parade.

The delegates then proceeded to the large hall where a sumptuous dinner was served, while the members of Co. G, Sixth Infantry, were enjoying a dinner and a smoker in their quarters.

Immediately after the parade, the convention was resumed. Resolution 6, which had been presented by Comrade Bowles and rejected was again brought up and was the cause of a long fight. The resolution provided for a finance committee for the purpose of investigating the financial standing of the U. S. V. V. After long discussion, the following comrades were appointed as the finance committee: R. R. Howles, Mann and Maxx. The following officers were elected for the ensuing term:

Department commander, Albert L.

Potter, Camp S. Gardner.

Senior vice department commander,

William Stopford, Camp 22, Salem.

Junior vice department commander,

Neil McDonald, Camp 22, Charlottetown.

Department Inspector, Thaddeus P.

Shaw, Camp 6, East Boston.

erville; William Stopford, Camp 22 of Salem; F. T. Clouston, Camp 16, of

Lynn; George P. Field, Camp 33, of

Roxbury and Arthur M. Newhall of Stonham.

A feature of the afternoon session

was the visit of Gov. Foss, who arrived shortly before the closing of the convention. The governor made brief

remarks and was received with wild enthusiasm.

The closing event of the convention

was the ball held last night in the drill

shed. The hall was beautifully decorated with red, white and blue flags

and bunting, and the military uniforms

as well as the rich costumes of the fair sex were a pretty sight.

A delightful concert was given previous to the dance by Hubbard's orchestra which furnished excellent music for the occasion.

The officers for the evening were:

General Manager, Capt. Walter R.

Jeyes; assistant general manager,

Commander George Sutherland; floor

director, Herbert Savage; assistant

floor director, Henry Driscoll; chief aid, Gilbert Hunt, and twenty-five aids.

The affair closed late in the evening

at which time everybody made a rush

for the station, for a special train left

Lowell for Boston at 12 o'clock.

Of the 20 teams that competed the following also finished with the full complement of eight men: Co. I, naval brigade, Fall River; Co. A, naval brigade, Boston; Co. F, naval brigade, Fall River; Co. I, 8th infantry, Lynn; Co. C, 8th infantry, Cambridge; signal corps, Boston, and Co. I, 8th infantry, Boston.

Gov. Foss came out from the state house to look the 150 athletes of the militia over, and he had every reason to be proud of them, for the surgeons had pronounced all well and in good condition. At 10:05 $\frac{1}{2}$ the order to march was given and the squads marched off in the following order: Co. II, 5th infantry; Co. I, 8th infantry; Co. F, 5th infantry; 7th company, C. A. C. R. I.; Co. L, 5th infantry; 2d company, C. A. C. R. I.; Co. I, naval brigade; Co. I, 8th infantry; Co. B, 8th infantry; Co. B, 5th infantry; Co. D, 2d corps of cadets; Co. B, naval brigade; Co. A, naval brigade; Co. E, naval brigade; 11th company, C. A. C. M. V. M.; Co. F, naval brigade.

Co. F Takes the Lead

The route was from the state house, and through the West End to Cambridge. The formation was held until it arrived at the bridge, when immediately Co. F of Waltham, last year's winners, broke into "double time," keeping it up until they arrived at the North Cambridge station, at which point the squad was nine minutes ahead of its nearest competitors, Co. I of the 8th.

While the Waltham boys were setting a hot pace, too hot for the infantry on the coast artillery to follow, the naval brigade came to the front and the four companies did some splendid marching. At Arlington the Waltham contingent had at least a clear lead of one mile, for second place, Co. D of the 2d corps, Co. L of the 5th and Co. B of the naval brigade were well bunched.

have shared in the day's honors on his war record, humbly viewed the parade from the curbing and then beat it for Westford street to see the military likers come in. He was Gunner George Charette, of this city, the hero of the Merrimack in Santiago harbor. Mr. Charette was interested in one of the teams of Naval Reserves in the military hike having been coaching them untiringly. His team came in third but was disqualified as one member took ill en route and dropped out.

It's a good bet that hundreds of Lowell people learned more about the Sixth regiment and the opening events of the Civil war as the result of Lowell's celebration than they ever learned at school.

"The Snakes" of the Spanish War Veterans held their parade "the night before," or more accurately "the morning after the night before," for it was past midnight, and those who remained up to see it were repaid for their loss of sleep as the parade was a "worker."

One hotel had one room vacant Tuesday night at midnight and asked $1 for it. Cot beds were at premium at the Richardson and Park hotels, where many of the Spanish War Veterans put up.

"Who's this bunch?" remarked a man in Merrimack street as the uniformed K's of P's came along. "They must be the Swedes," returned his companion as he gazed upon the blonde locks and fair complexion of Dr. Lanzu who appeared at their head.

GREEK CHURCH

The members of the Greek Orthodox church in Jefferson street are this week observing their Holy week. Last Sunday was Palm Sunday, and the day was observed in a fitting manner by elaborate services and the blessing of the palms.

Services were held every night this week and this morning at a mass celebrated at 7 o'clock by the pastor, the Holy bread for the sick was sanctified. This ceremony takes place but once a year and on Holy Thursday. At seven o'clock this evening the "Twelve Apostles" service will be held.

Matins will be sung tomorrow morning and at seven o'clock in the evening the services known as the "Burial of Our Lord" will be held. This consists of the singing of the lamentations while the image of Our Lord is being carried around the principal streets of the Greek district by four men. The procession returns to the church where the lamentations are again sung.

On Holy Saturday mass is celebrated in the morning and services are held from 10 p. m. till 2 a. m. at which time the faithful receive holy communion. Easter Sunday will be celebrated in an elaborate manner with a special musical program prepared under the direction of Prof. Leontidas Vrulos.

Ground Broken for New Church With Eloquent Discourse by Rev. Fr. Alexis, O. P. — Flag Raising in the Afternoon With Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston as Principal Speaker

April 19th will always be a memorable day for the people of St. Margaret's parish, for with a double observance yesterday, the work of the erection of the church was begun most auspiciously. Great crowds attended both the morning and afternoon observances.

Ground Broken

In the morning, the formal opening up of the work of the new church took place, and with striking simplicity, the spade was sunk into the ground, and the sod upturned, while those about applauded vigorously. The musical program consisted of the singing of hymns by the choir, with accompaniment of a reed organ placed on the lawn. The sermon, an able effort, was delivered by Rev. Fr. Alexis, O. P., the eloquent missionary.

In opening he said that the turning of the ground for the new church marked an epoch in the city, for the building of a new church brings blessing and benefit to the city at large. It entails sacrifice on the part of both priest and people.

"Beauty," he said, "appeals to us from the standpoint from which we view it. So with the Catholic church, it is the view we take of it which makes it so beautiful." The reverend father then spoke eloquently of the various aspects of the church, as the kingdom, the fold, the priest, and the home of love and of truth.

"Here in the United States," he continued, "the church must appeal to those outside the fold as well as to those inside it, for it gives what is most important of all, education. If our Catholic people would only believe that they are taught to believe, how proud we should be. You, dear people, should endeavor to realize what it means that God is to take up his dwelling here among you, to make a home here, and you should endeavor to make this home worthy of him."

At the conclusion of the address, Rev. Fr. Harkins, the pastor, preceded by two acolytes and followed by clergy from other churches, moved across the lot to the spot where later the cornerstone of the church will be laid. Here a large wooden cross was placed in a socket in the ground and Rev. Fr. Harkins blessed the cross, and the site of the future church. Then taking a spade he turned the first sod. Rev. Fr. Alexis and clergy from the local churches then took a turn with the spade, which closed the ceremonies of the morning.

The Flag Raising

To the familiar strains of "The Wearing of the Green" by the Cadet band, the members of the Wolf Tone Guards, Co. E, Irish Volunteers and local divisions of the Hibernians, headed by divisional marshal Michael McMullen and mounted aids, swung into Stevens street at 4:35 o'clock.

As the parades reached St. Margaret's church, they were assigned a conspicuous place on the lawn, while hundreds came from far and near, to witness the pretty ceremony. At just 4:30 o'clock, George M. Harrigan, chairman, opened the exercises with a brief welcome to the gathering. He then introduced in complimentary terms Prof. Hugh J. Molloy, Prof. Molloy took for his theme "What the Flag Means to St. Margaret's parish," and with characteristic eloquence, he held the attention of the audience, as he drew lessons from the twin ceremony of the day.

Postmaster Joseph A. Legare, was next introduced and he spoke interestingly. He said that it was pleasant duty assigned him by Congressman Ames, to present to Fr. Harkins in his name, the flag of the stars, and stripes. He said it was peculiarly

Mr. Harrigan and his singers are here this week furnishing the public with a fine concert program free of charge, just to introduce the latest ballad successes.

A pleasing feature of the exercises was the singing by a trio composed of Mr. Arthur H. Harrison of the Harvard Music Publishing company of Providence, Mr. M. Rooney of Providence, and Mr. F. C. Field, Prof. M. J. McCann was the accompanist.

EXTRA ANDOVER OFFICER

Shot and Killed an Unknown Lawrence Man

ANDOVER, April 20.—Police Officer Charles Newton, Jr., shot and killed an unknown man thought to belong to the Lawrence foreign colony, 30 years of age, on the West Andover road early this morning after the man had entered his father's house and stolen a case of 20 dozen eggs. The family were awakened when the thief was leaving the house and Newton gave chase. He overtook the man and commanded him to halt, but instead was attacked by the stranger. After firing into the air Newton shot the man in the abdomen with a shotgun. He claimed he was forced to shoot in self-defense. The body was removed to Lawrence. There has been much thievery in the farming districts for months and the police believe that the victim was concerned in many of the breaks.

MEXICAN INSURGENTS

Demand the Surrender of Juarez Within 24 Hours

EL PASO, Texas, April 20.—Day
break found the situation around Juarez unchanged. There were no alarms during the night. It is reported that considerable supplies of American ammunition were smuggled across the river to the insurgents under cover of darkness.

Formal demand for the surrender of Juarez within 24 hours was made by the insurgents last night, according to Gonzales Garza, secretary-general of the insurrectionary party, who declared that he had forwarded the demand to General Navarro, the federal commander, through the United States consul at Juarez, Navarro, last night, denied having received the demand. According to United States army officers here, Juarez would be prepared for the expected attack. The trenches outside the city, they say, have been so well

constructed as practically to defy discovery and the fortifications within
the city show unusual military skill.
Juarez, in their opinion, is in a position
to resist the attack of a force far greater than its garrison.

The insurgents, it is believed, must attack soon after the expiration of the 24 hour respite given in their demand
for surrender last night, as they are said to be out of food.

From Bauche, 12 miles south of Juarez, where they detrained, they advanced on foot into the hills near Juarez, taking with them, it is said,
no food supplies but a flock of goats.

At Bauche, the insurgents have their trains under steam, ready for a hasty retreat should their attack fail.
Advices from the insurrectionary camp
near Madero, Chihuahua, last night,
declared that the force advancing on Juarez consisted of 1840 men, divided into five columns. One of these, the despatches stated, was under the command of Francisco Madero, the insurgent commander-in-chief.

U. S. COAST ARTILLERY LEADING THE MILITARY DIVISION

50th Anniversary of Old Sixth's March Through Baltimore

By far the most imposing feature of the Nineteenth of April observance
was the grand parade which passed through the principal streets of the city yesterday afternoon. It was one of the finest military demonstrations ever witnessed in this city, and cheered with
cheer rent the air as Brigadier General Edward F. Jones and the survivors of the Old Sixth passed through the streets which were thronged on both sides by thousands of people.

There were fully 6000 men in line,
including members of the Old Sixth,
the Sixth regiment of today, military companies from out of town, United States soldiers, semi-military organizations and citizens of Lowell.

Flags and bunting were draped everywhere from the buildings with here
and there gold-blazoned emblems. The scene was one of patriotic rejoicing.

More than three-quarters of the population of Lowell, together with

thousands of people from out of town,
turned out to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the march through Baltimore of the "Old Sixth."

The city of Lowell was represented
by Mayor John F. Meehan, the state
by Governor Foss and Lieut. Gov.
Frothingham, and the nation and the army of the republic by Commander-in-Chief John E. Gillman.

The day was ideal for the parade,
the sun playing hide and seek behind
the clouds, a mild breeze was blowing
and owing to the short route the marchers did not show any fatigue at the conclusion.

One of the most pleasing spectacles of the parade occurred when the head of the line reached the corner of Moody and Aiken street when at the command of Chief Marshal Earl A.
Thissell, the marchers took positions
on the right of Moody and Merrimack
streets, and Governor Foss and staff,
Gen. Jones and others occupying carriages were driven by and taken to city
hall where the parade was reviewed.

Governor Foss and staff occupied
the reviewing stand which was erected on the lawn between City Hall and Memorial building, while Gen. Jones
and his two daughters, Mrs. Cora Sheridan and Mrs. Elizabeth C. Anderson, the daughter of the regiment,
and Sumner H. Needham, 4th, the grandson of Sumner Needham, who was one of the first four men to fall
at Baltimore in 1861, occupied chairs
in front of the Merrimack street entrance
to city hall.

The demonstration proved to be a trying one on Gen. Jones, for it recalled to him the incidents of half a century ago when he, in the prime of life and armed with the use of a pair
of good eyes, left Lowell for the front
and fought valiantly for his country.
For the past twenty years his eyes
have been sightless and more than once yesterday he wished that he might have the use of his eyes for a few minutes
at least, in order to look upon the remnants of the grand "Old Sixth"
which he commanded. While he could not see his old comrades, he was not
nervous when they were passing in review, and standing with uncovered head and eyes dimmed with tears, he waived his hat, heard the cheers of
members of his command, and later
met and shook hands with many of the brave heroes.

The Old Sixth

While the 71 survivors of the 700
original members of his command
passed and he heard their cheers he said: "God—I've not seen in twenty years and I've never complained, but I'd give my life to see just for a minute
now."

It took just 51 minutes for the parade to pass the reviewing stand.

Many of the members of the Old

Sixth as well as comrades in the different local posts of the Grand Army

of the Republic yesterday appeared in

parade for the last time, for every succeeding year finds the ranks growing

thinner, many having been summoned to their eternal home. There was none of the members of the Old Sixth

who did not show the signs of advancing years and the marks of the war.

BURNED TO GROUND

Cottage House and Barn Were Destroyed by Fire

A cottage house and barn, belonging to Archie Chouinard, and occupied by a family named Plunkett, located in Varnum avenue just over the Tyng-
boro line, and near what is known as The Dip, were destroyed by fire about three o'clock this morning. The fire
was caused by the explosion of a kerosene lamp and the flames spread so rapidly that Mr. and Mrs. Plunkett
and their four children in order to save
their lives had to rush from the house
in night attire. The contents of both buildings were also destroyed.

Neighbors in the vicinity were
aroused and rushed to the scene with hand extinguishers, but the flames had made such rapid headway that the efforts of the volunteer firemen were fruitless and in a short time nothing
but a heap of ashes marked the sites
occupied by the buildings.

It is understood that one of the Plunkett children had been ill and about three o'clock Mrs. Plunkett arose to care for the child. She lighted
a lamp and in some manner accidentally dropped it. When the lamp fell to the floor it exploded and the kerosene oil pouring over the floor was soon ignited and in a few seconds the room was ablaze.

Her cries attracted the attention of her husband and Mr. and Mrs. Plunkett
and their children rushed out of the house to that of a neighbor.

The alarm of fire was soon spread
and within a few minutes a number of neighbors were on the scene and
later on residents within a mile were
on hand, but the only things they had
to battle with the flames were hand
extinguishers and the streams of chemical, had no effect on the buildings
which were afame from the ground to the roof.

Several Fires Yesterday

The firemen responded to several
alarms for fires yesterday, but in no
case was the fire of a serious nature.

At 10:53 o'clock yesterday morning
a portion of the department was called
to a fire in a house in Chelmsford
street, belonging to the Frank C. Be-harry estate. The fire started in a bed lounge in a sitting room, the lounge
being destroyed, but the only other
damage was the charring of the walls
and the floor near where the lounge
was located.

At 10:45 a telephone alarm was sent
in for a fire on the banks of the Merrimack river near the corner of Stetson and Alder streets. Some person had started a fire in the grass and the flames
scorched a portion of the fence before
they were extinguished.

An alarm at 11:45 o'clock was for a fire in a dump off School street belonging to the Locks & Canals. No damage.

A telephone alarm at 1:30 o'clock was
for a grass fire in land in Hazel street
belonging to Patrick Kane.

The members of the High street
engine company were called about 9:30
o'clock last night to extinguish a rubbish fire in a yard in High street near
the corner of Andover street.

Chimney Fire
This morning at 9 o'clock a portion of the department was called to extinguish a fire in a chimney at the corner of Central and Crosby streets.
The building is owned by Mrs. Mc-Cullen, but the fire was extinguished
before any damage was done.

CHIMNEY SPARK

Started Blaze in a Lumber Mill

One of the features of yesterday's observance was the absence of pickpockets in this city. As a rule the "dips" keep tabs on the different cities
where big demonstrations are to be held and when the time arrives they enter the city and by mingling with
the crowds manage to separate people
from their money and other valuables.

Owing to the shortness of the route
of parade yesterday, the thousands of people were necessarily packed closely together in the streets and if there were any members of the light fingered
gentry on hand they could have reaped
a harvest, but up to the time of going to press this afternoon no one had registered
a complaint of having lost anything.

The first floor of the building is used for office purposes and the second floor as a drying room. One of the employees of the company noticed
a blaze on the roof and immediately notified the office. Word was telephoned to the central fire station and in the meantime a passerby sent an alarm
box to 42.

In a few minutes several pieces of apparatus were on the scene and with the aid of two ladders the members of the protective chemical companies
ran their lines to the roof and succeeded
in extinguishing the flames.

Inasmuch as there was a strong wind blowing and the blaze spread rapidly before the firemen reached the place the employee immediately started to collect the books and other records and carried them to a place of safety.

Chief Hosmer is of the opinion that the fire was caused by a spark from a chimney. The roof of the building was damaged to some extent and some water entered the two upper floors.

tious food and the most
dainty and delicious.

On motion of one of the members from the floor, the name of Gen. Edward F. Jones was placed in nomination as the president for the coming year and it was favored unanimously, but after the vote was announced Gen. Jones declined to accept, stating that it was some 25 years ago that he made a motion that no member should serve more than one term in this particular office unless it was found absolutely necessary.

The committee then adjourned and on its return announced the following selection of officers for the coming year:

President, Charles H. Frye of Company K; first vice president, J. Stevans Brown of Company C; second vice president, Victor G. Glingras of Company I; secretary and treasurer, Edward F. Spofford. These names were placed before the body and voted on unanimously. The same auditing committee will serve for the next term.

BOARD OF POLICE

Heard Protests Against Granting of Certain Licenses

The Federation Objects to Licenses of Different Classes in Adjoining Premises — Greek Pastor Says That He Has No Objection to License in Greek Colony

The Lowell Law and Order league, properly owners and citizens of this city, who remonstrated against the granting of first and fourth class liquor licenses in adjoining premises, also against the granting of licenses in Merrimack square, corner of Bridge and Paige streets, and in the Greek colony, were given a hearing by the board of police Tuesday night. Owing to the large number of people present, the hearing was held in the police court room.

The hearing was opened at 8:15 o'clock by Chairman John J. Mullany of the police board. He stated, that one hour would be allowed to the petitioners and the same time to the respondents in the petitions of the Lowell Federation of Churches and the Law and Order league, relative to the granting of first and fourth class licenses in adjoining premises, also protesting against the granting of licenses at or near Merrimack square and in the Greek colony.

Chairman Mullany read a number of communications sent in by petitioners to the police board, all of which were published in The Sun last week.

Chairman Mullany stated that Rev. J. M. Craig had stated his position to the board during the afternoon, because he would be unable to be present at the hearing.

Rev. Allan C. Ferrin, president of the Law and Order league, was the first speaker for the petitioners. He spoke in part as follows:

"We ask that you not grant first and fourth class licenses on adjoining premises. After a year's discussion of the bar and bottle bill it has now become a law. That law expresses the will of a majority of the people of this state of Massachusetts."

"Now, if you allow first and fourth

classes of license to be granted on

adjoining premises, you will not be in keeping with the spirit of the new

law. We feel that it is absolutely necessary for the moral welfare of the city of Lowell that these licenses be

not granted on adjoining premises."

He also said that the league protest

ed against the reissuing of licenses to persons who had been found guilty of violating the terms of their licenses

during the past year.

Next came Rev. George F. Kenngott,

pastor of the First Trinitarian church,

who appeared as a representative of

the Federation of Churches. He said that the federation protested first

against the granting of a first and

fourth class license to the same person

or persons in the same or adjoining

streets; second, against the granting of

first and fourth class licenses to any persons holding inholders' li-

enses; third, against the granting of

any license whatever in or about Merrimack square; fourth, against the granting of any license whatever to any person or persons in the Greek

residential district; and fifth, against

a reduction in the number of hotel li-

enses.

He said: "There should be no saloons

whatever on Bridge street, between Merrimack street and the Cen-

tralville bridge, on Merrimack street

from the bridge over the Concord river

to Central street, nor anywhere else

in or about Merrimack square.

Rev. N. W. Matthews, pastor of the Gorham Street Methodist church, spoke along similar lines.

A. P. Sawyer appeared for the Middlesex Machine company, against the granting of a liquor license at 16 Merrimack street. He said that the company in question was restricted from

doing a liquor business on its premises, and could not understand why

anybody else could go in next door

and engage in it.

Chairman Mullany asked Mr. Flather if he was aware that where the Greeks had applied for a license

there had been licensed place for the past forty years. Mr. Flather replied

that he was not aware of it.

Mr. Flather said: "I am opposed to a license being given on the route

taken by the employees of the Boott

mills from Bridge street to the cen-teral street. There will be drunkenness if they are thus intercepted by more licensed places, and I am opposed to the granting of any li-

KELLY ARRESTED TWO TRAGEDIES

He is Charged With Causing the Malden Man Fired at Wife and Then Death of Jeremiah Mahoney

BOSTON, April 20.—Jeremiah Mahoney, aged 45, of 21 Joseph street, Somerville, was instantly killed at 5:15 yesterday morning on C street, South Boston, resulting from a blow on the back of the head.

Ex-Councilman Coleman Kelly of 52 West 6th street, South Boston, was arrested within an hour afterward by Patrolmen De Youne and Hill and Reserve Officer Stephen Murphy of division 6 on charge of causing Mahoney's death by throwing a brick at him.

It struck the mark and Mahoney fell to the ground dead, without uttering a sound, says Manning.

Patrick Coyne and another man were with Kelly at the time and one of them, according to Daniel Manning's story, struck at him until he saw Mahoney fall. The second assailant said, "He's killed him," and then ran away, Manning says. Kelly also took to his heels and was soon out of sight, according to Manning.

James A. Roche, a guest at the wedding reception, who departed about the same time that Manning and Mahoney left, says he was just behind the party when the assault occurred. He declares Kelly, Coyne and the third man had disappeared. Roche saw blood on Mahoney's face and then ran to the parochial residence of the church of the Holy Rosary and summoned a priest. But the man was dead.

Manning was the first to notify the police of the trouble. Lieut. Sanford sent out men to arrest Kelly. Patrolmen De Youne and Hill and Officer Murphy, went to the home of Kelly. One of Kelly's brothers told the officers that Coleman was not in and refused admittance. The officers broke down the door and they found Coleman in his room partially dressed. He made no resistance.

At the station, Kelly was overcome when informed that Mahoney was dead. All Kelly would say, then, was that he had done it in self-defense and was very sorry Mahoney was dead.

Mahoney's body was taken to the City hospital morgue at the request of the medical examiner.

With Kelly, at the time of the assault, was Patrick Coyne and he with Daniel Manning and Jacob Frank, are said to have been witnesses of the affair.

Patrick Manning and Miss Sarah Coughlin, both of South Boston, were married Tuesday evening and shortly afterward festivities began at the home of the bridegroom, 23 C street. More than 100 relatives and friends of the couple were present to congratulate them.

It is said that shortly after midnight, Edward Barry, a friend of Manning, who was on his way to the reception, having received an invitation, met Kelly and invited him to accompany him.

Witnesses among the wedding guests says Barry and Kelly were elected from the house, Barry without his hat and coat.

While they stood on the sidewalk, Mahoney came along and, it is said, urged Kelly to take his friend Barry and get along out of the way.

Kelly said that he would not go unless his friend Barry got his hat and coat.

By some of the guests it is said that Kelly and Barry returned to the house and got the latter's clothes and then hurried out.

According to the story of Daniel Manning, a brother-in-law of Mahoney, he and Mahoney were walking along C street toward Broadway about 5:15 and were intending to get a car for their home in Somerville. Manning says Kelly overtook the men and, muttering something to Mahoney, stopped in the gutter, picked up a brick or part of one and threw it at Mahoney's head.

Committed Suicide

Man Was Shot While Clipping Limbs From a Tree — James Kenny Charged With Assault With a Dangerous Weapon

MALDEN, April 20.—As a result of two entirely unconnected shooting affairs in this city yesterday, Zarachiel T. Talton, aged 54, of 754 Salem street, is a suicide, after twice wounding his wife; James A. McDonald of 6 Greenwood court, has a serious wound in the left knee and James Kenny of 4 Greenwood court, a neighbor, is locked up on charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Talton shot himself in the head shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon after attempting to kill his wife and stepdaughter, Miss Edna Desmond, aged 20, who resided with him. The shot that he fired into his head lodged in his brain and killed him almost instantly.

No reason can be given by Mrs. Talton for the act. She stated that the shooting came without any warning whatever. Talton fired two shots at his wife, one entering her left side and passing out through her back, barely under the skin. The second bullet pierced her right hand.

Miss Desmond interfered and the murderer chased her from the house, firing two shots at her as she ran along Salem street. Neither bullet took effect and Talton returned to the house, apparently with the intention of finishing his wife.

He entered by side door and his wife fled by a back stairway into the yard. Not finding his wife in the room, he placed the revolver back of his ear and shot himself dead.

JEFF DOHERTY

Proved too Fast for Jimmie Moriarty

Jimmie Moriarty got a licking from Jeff Doherty, the husky New Haven boxer, before the Lowell Social and Athletic club last evening and yet Jimmie never put up a clever or clever exhibition in his career. He has abandoned the rough ways that often brought down criticism on his head and fought openly and cleanly throughout, but Doherty was a shade clever and excelled at infighting. Doherty sending in many hot body punches to the local boy. While Moriarty was not in a bad way by any means there was no question as to the superiority of Doherty and the decision was general satisfaction.

The bouts were among the best ever seen in Lowell and drew a large gathering of bona fide members. The manager proved to be decidedly fussy and 120 or more were turned away from the door because they had not conformed to the requirements of the law, while several members were expelled from the club as they had transferred their membership card and were caught at it.

The two principals were fine in the first round and Scotty McGee, two Lawrence rivals, went at it intending to go six rounds. In the second Scotty walked into something and his lights went out. The next bout was between Charles Annastas, the Greek boxer, and Young Kelly of Cambridge, and it was the big young fellow, something doing every minute, with walters. They opened up with Annie dropping Kelly in the first round but the latter was back again without waiting for the count. In the second he sent Kelly to the ropes with haymaker. In the third Kelly evened it a bit but the fourth and fifth were Annie's and he had Kelly to the head but lacked the steam to finish him. Kelly showed signs of coming back good in the sixth but it was too late. Annastas got the decision which was right, though Kelly's friends who were in the majority put up a big protest because a draw wasn't called. At the next meeting Gils Lenley of Lawrence and Young Boys of this city will be one of two 10 round features.

A LIVELY BLAZE

An alarm from box 102 shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday morning summoned a portion of the fire department to a lively blaze in a lodging house at 493 Moody street, conducted by John Feeney. The fire had its inception in a sleeping room on the second floor and had been smoldering for several hours before it was discovered.

One of the occupants of the house detecting a strong odor of smoke made an investigation and locating the fire pulled in an alarm. When the door was broken open the interior of the room was like a roaring furnace, but the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they communicated to other parts of the house.

The interior of the room and its contents were destroyed. The origin of the fire is not known.

ing 185, 42, 120, of Lowell, Needham post of Lawrence, and others. Post Needham was named after one of the four men who gave up their lives in the march through Baltimore. Incidentally it may be stated that Sumner H. Needham, the fourth, a great grandson of the man of that name who was killed at Baltimore, was in the parade, and later shook hands with General Jones and Governor Foss.

The First Trinitarian cadets, wearing blue and white uniforms, attracted attention, and were cheered repeatedly. The Boy Scouts, Rev. E. Victor Bigelow commanding, proved a novel and an attractive feature.

With Capt. McNulty at their head, and the Meagher guards acting as escort, the Spanish War veterans marched in large numbers, and with the precision of men who have had experience in matters military. They wore blue uniforms that were in splendid harmony with those of the other and older veterans. Many cities and towns were represented in the lineup.

Peter A. Mackenzie was marshal of the fourth division and behind him marched the bagpipers with their usual music and a bass drummer who manipulated his two sticks in a manner which could not fail to attract attention. He juggled the sticks in every which way and despite his maneuvers managed to keep time and dispense music in keeping with the bagpipes. Then came the Scottish clans with their native attire followed by the uniform rank of the Knights of Pythias.

The local divisions of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Divisions 1, 2, 3, 11 and 28, turned out in large numbers and were headed by Marshal Michael McMullen. First came the Lowell Cadet band followed by the Wolfe Tone Guards and Company E, Irish Volunteers, acting as escort for the Ancient Order of Hibernians. Every local division was well represented, including Divisions 1, 2, 3, 11 and 28, and the men wore suits of black with green sashes, and military caps.

The French division, Henry Achin, marshal, was one of the most elaborate in the parade, comprising hundreds of fine looking men wearing uniforms with blue as the central color. They were decidedly military in their appearance, and their precise steps and splendid alignment excited enthusiastic recognition along the line of march.

The Greek and Polish societies made up the seventh division. The marchers were attired in gay uniforms with elaborate trappings and were accompanied by their bands. The Greek military society, attired in khaki uniforms, turned out in large numbers and presented a very neat appearance.

The pageant feature included floats depicting war figures, including two nurses, Clara Barton and Dr. Laura Hughes, and President Lincoln.

The roster of the parade was as follows:

The roping and wiring off of the streets kept the streets along the route of parade free of people other than those who were marching.

The committee in charge of the observance established itself in the reception room at city hall at ten o'clock in the morning where Mayor John F. Moehan and a large corps of aide members of the committee, made their headquarters.

All trains bearing organizations which were to appear in the parade were met at the depot by representatives of the general committee.

Governor Foss and his staff came over the road to Lowell in automobiles, after seeing the start of the military hike in front of the state house. They made their headquarters at the Yorick club.

The regulars, a detachment from the United States coast artillery from the forts in Boston harbor, came early in the morning. The enlisted men were installed in Hamilton hall, while the officers were taken to city hall and later entertained at the Yorick club.

Post 12, G. A. R., of Wakefield, the Old Sixth association, and Posts 67, 68 and 146 were entertained by Post 42 in Memorial hall. Posts 30, 40 and 36 were cared for by Post 120 and Post 186 entertained Posts 4, 75, 184 and 195.

The Sons of Veterans and women's auxiliary organizations entertained many of the visiting organizations.

The Boston & Northern Street Railway company used almost every available car on the local division to provide rapid transit for the thousands of people.

People who were of the opinion that the parade would not start for half an hour after the appointed time, were disappointed and a number missed it.

Almost every available window in the business buildings in Merrimack and Central streets was thronged with people.

Hundreds of the visitors were entertained at the homes of their friends in this city and many remained over night in Lowell.

The members of the rising generation risked life and limb in order to secure a place of vantage to view the parade. The roofs of the Pastime and Sun theatres, opposite city hall were black with boys and young men who armed with large sticks made plenty of noise as the parades passed.

Many of the marchers carried beautiful bouquets which had been presented to them by friends.

The manner in which the various details of the parade were carried out to the letter reflects much credit on Chief Marshal Thissell and his aids.

One of the members of the Protective company was stationed at the entrance to Central street to keep the street clear of vehicles in order that the automobile might be able to break through the crowd in case an alarm or fire was sounded. Fortunately no alarm was pulled in while the parade was passing.

One of the features of the parade was the fact that there was plenty of good music.

Alvin Joy was the impersonator of President Lincoln on the float entered by the O. U. A. M.

The colored company of the Sixth regiment was loudly cheered all along the route of parade.

The decorations were the most elaborate and artistic ever seen in this city.

town of Dunstable is named and familiarly known as "Dunn of Dunstable," mounted on his famous fawn colored stallion, "Patrick Starfield," had "Happy Days" Casey faded away.

During a stop in Merrimack street near St. Anne's church the Lowell Military band struck up some patriotic air and the veterans of the post behind them sang the songs to the band's accompaniment to the great satisfaction of the big crowd present, which applauded lustily.

There was certainly some class to the Greeks and the Poles in the parade. They turned out in numbers and in neat uniforms, while their marching was fine.

Marshal Dennis Murphy carried a huge bouquet presented him by the Jolly Campers.

Ground Broken for New Church With Eloquent Discourse by Rev. Fr. Alexis, O. P. — Flag Raising in the Afternoon With Mayor Fitzgerald of Boston as Principal Speaker

April 19th will always be a memorable day for the people of St. Margaret's parish, for with a double observance yesterday, the work of the erection of the church was begun most auspiciously. Great crowds attended both the morning and afternoon observances.

Ground Broken

In the morning, the formal opening up of the work of the new church took place, and with striking simplicity, the spade was sunk into the ground and the sod turned, while those about applauded vigorously. The musical program consisted of the singing of hymns by the choir, with accompaniment of a reed organ placed on the lawn. The sermon, an able effort, was delivered by Rev. Fr. Alexis, O. P., the eloquent missionary.

In opening he said that the turning of the ground for the new church marked an epoch in the city, for the building of a new church brings blessing and benefit to the city at large. It entails sacrifice on the part of both priest and people.

"Beauty," he said, "appeals to us from the standpoint from which we view it. So with the Catholic church; it is the view we take of it which makes it so beautiful." The reverend father then spoke eloquently of the various aspects of the church, as the kingdom, the fold, the pearl, and the home of love and of truth.

"Here in the United States," he continued, "the church must appeal to those outside the fold as well as to those inside it, for it gives what is most important of all, education. If our Catholic people would only believe what they are taught to believe, how proud we should be. You, dear people, should endeavor to realize what it means that God is to take up his dwelling here among you, to make a home here, and you should endeavor to make this home worthy of him."

At the conclusion of the address, Rev. Fr. Harkins, the pastor, preceded by two acolytes and followed by clergy from other churches, moved across the lot to the spot where later the cornerstone of the church will be laid. Here a large wooden cross was placed in a socket in the ground and Rev. Fr. Harkins blessed the cross, and the site of the future church. Then taking a spade he turned the first sod. Rev. Fr. Alexis and clergy from the local churches then took a turn with the spade, which closed the ceremonies of the morning.

The Flag Raising

To the familiar strains of "The Weaving of the Green" by the Cadet band, the members of the Wolf Tone Guards, Co. E, Irish Volunteers and local divisions of the Hibernians, headed by division marshal Michael McMullen and mounted all, swung into Stevens street at 3:45 o'clock.

As the parades reached St. Margaret's church, they were assigned a conspicuous place on the lawn, while hundreds came from far and near, to witness the pretty ceremony. At just 4:00 o'clock, George M. Harrigan, chairman, opened the exercises with a brief welcome to the gathering. He then introduced in complimentary terms, Prof. Hugh J. Molloy. Prof. Molloy took for his theme "What the Flag Means to St. Margaret's parish," and with characteristic eloquence, he held the attention of the audience, as he drew lessons from the twin ceremony of the day.

Postmaster Joseph A. Legare, was next introduced and he spoke interestingly. He said that it was a pleasant duty assigned him by Congressman Ames, to present to Fr. Harkins in his name, the flag of the stars, and stripes. He said it was peculiarly pleasing to him to be asked to do this, as he had spoken at the same ceremony in 1896, when he was a boy.

The trio rendered "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America" and also led in the singing of "Sweet Adeline." Mr. Field gave a solo "Believe Me." Mr. Harrigan and his singers are here this week furnishing the public with a fine concert program to close the ballad successes.

out in the parade with his former friends of Garde Frontenac.

A whist party for the benefit of the Lydia table at the coming festival of the C. M. A. C. will be given in the latter hall Friday evening by Miss Rose Tellier and Messrs. Alderic L. Tellier and Williford Viguerie.

The order and deportment of the boys and girls who crowded high school hall Tuesday afternoon, to see Col. Jones, who asked the privilege of meeting them, was noticeably good and was favorably commented upon, especially by the strangers, mostly veterans, who gathered there. Such behavior reflects good training both at home and at school.

bullets whizzed by their heads and the major said that when he wasn't engaged in dodging, he would holler "Don't dodge boys."

The major was given a warm and hearty welcome in rising to respond to the roasts had become infixed but he said Major Stott had been given the privilege "to shoot off his mouth, in any direction." The little speeches, characteristic of the major, made a big hit. He asked to be allowed to sit while talking as he had but one leg to stand on and as the old warrior lowered himself into his chair, other upon cheer went up, and the major had to wait a while before proceeding with his remarks. In part, he said:

"The history of the Sixth regiment comes down to us with all the charm of antiquity. It dates from the earliest of our military system. It has several times had its number changed, though in 1775 it comprised the same territory as now, and was known as the Sixth regiment. Between 1810 and 1855 it was called the Fifth, but since then it has resumed its original number. It certainly requires no great stretch of the imagination to locate men of the Sixth at Lexington, April 19, 1775. It is a wonderful record; I doubt if it can be equaled in the country.

"This regiment was composed of the men of Middlesex county, until 1855, when two companies from Lawrence were enrolled under its banner. I doubt if it took any part in the war of 1812. The presumption is that to all the years preceding April, 1812, its tour of duty was confined to the annual muster and local or state parades. The state militia was at a low ebb for many years, and was regarded by many as of no great importance, but in 1855 Governor Banks, as commander-in-chief, put new life into the organization, and to his interest and encouragement is due the fact that when the call came in '51, five regiments of the state were prepared to respond.

"The Sixth has contributed to the Civil as well as the military service of the state, and from its ranks have gone governors, congressmen, legislators, county and municipal officers."

Col. Edward Anderson

Col. Edward Anderson responded to the toast that Gen. Jones was to have spoken on "The Nineteenth of April," and he filled the bill very acceptably, speaking of the toastmaster's remark that had Washington been lost President Lincoln would have administered the government from a gripseck. Col. Anderson said that had the rebels captured Washington, President Lincoln would probably have lost his life at that time.

Rev. John F. Burns

"American Womanhood, Her Patriotic Services to Her Country, Past and Present," was the last toast and later was responded to by Rev. John F. Burns of St. Peter's church, and the response was an eloquent one. In part, he said:

"The glories of the day, the members of the church which frame them, it is that we shall conserve the inspiration of the hour, so as to make it vital to every child within the city today, and to the millions of children yet unborn."

"To you veterans of the Sixth I now turn for aid in making this a vital, a real lesson, so our celebration will not begin or end in any hall, or any one day, with the set of sun, but shall be something which shall be carried out in every household within our limits, so it shall be a sweet and constant benediction for all time."

Major Charles A. Stott

"Don't dodge boys!" were Major Stott's first words upon rising and later he told what they meant. He said it was a saying which he originated in the storm of battle. The boys were in the habit of dodging when rebel
